

Local Plymouth Resident wins ski race in Chile

La Parva, Chile

Chrisdel RT Stokloza of Plymouth NH won a masters ski race at the South American ski resort La Parva. Chrisdel was traveling with her husband, Peter Stokloza, CEO and Executive Director of WVBBTS/SEF of Waterville Valley, NH. Chrisdel was a coach/chaperon for the ski club's summer on-snow camp.

On Saturday August 13th Chrisdel competed in an annual Masters giant slalom race at La Parva. She completed the 30-gate, steep and challenging GS course in 45.48 seconds a full five seconds ahead of the second place female competitor. Her time was in fact the second fastest of all 100 women and men competitors! She was awarded a gold medal and made everyone who was traveling with her very proud. Her husband and coach Peter said " She was simple amazing. Chrisdel has not trained for several years and then to jump in a race and not only win but beat all the men except one-she's incredible!"

Chrisdel was also the former United States Masters National Slalom Champion in 2000, and a very competitive ski racer in High School and College. She is currently a Kindergarten teacher in Ashland, NH.
